

Was there a strategy in your country regarding

- the technical implementation?
- the legal framework?
- the involvement and communication with stakeholders?
- the build-up of knowhow?
- evaluation?
- the political implementation?

How do you integrate patients and professionals into the development of new technologies, thereby considering the diversity of the population?

How do you enhance acceptance of new technologies?

Is there a way to improve accessibility?

How do you handle questions of (digital) ethics?

Is there a strategy in your country to ensure quality and safety during the implementation phase of a new technology?

Additional questions:

How will your project affect the future and improve the health of patients?

Are there any independent standards regarding product certification in your country?

How compatible are new technologies across countries?